—It is rumored that one of John Robinson's elephants broke his back and another his leg, in the railroad accident.

—A social dance will be given at Armory Hall next Saturday evening, by Messrs. Day and Meder. Members of the Virginia Orchestra will assist with the music.

—A tie up occurred on the New Mexico, Arizona and Sonora Railroad at Nogales, A. T., Monday, the brakeman refusing to take out their trains. All traffic is stopped.

—Two new evening papers have made their appearance at Los Angeles, the Telegram and the News, the former Democratic in politics and the latter endorses the American party.

—It was rumored yesterday that nine of John Robinson's circus cars were ditched between Reno and Truckee, and that an injured elephant killed his keeper. Two of the cars were sent back to Carson for repairs.

—Forest fires are raging near Sierre City, and if not speedily checked it is feared much damage will be done to property. A fire has also been raging in the redwoods West of Gilroy for two days. About 300,000 feet of cut logs belonging to Whitehurst & Hodges have been destroyed.

—Louise Perkins has compromised the suit with E. J. Baldwin and left her lawyers in the lurch. Rumors for some days pointed to such a result, and the people were not surprised when the rumors found corroboration in her non-appearance in court at Los Angeles yesterday, when her case was called. With the ending of this suit there is open talk at Los Angeles that Miss Verona Baldwin will bring suit against Mr. Baldwin for damages.

Eugene Howell's Condition.
Eugene Howell, of White Pine, writes from Oakland, Cal., to a gentleman in Eureka that he is regaining his strength and appetite. The pains in his back have almost entirely disappeared. He says that his feet don't appear to him to be getting much better, but his doctor says that they have improved 100 per cent during the last month. He says the swelling is not so bad as it was, and the fever has perceptibly diminished, but the pains are still there. It will be remembered that Mr. Howell was lost in a blinding snow-storm on Treasure Hill one night last Winter, and was very badly frost bitten.

Free Lecture.

D. B. Canfield, Esq., a member of the Philadelphia Bar, is visiting Nevada, and will deliver a lecture upon the subject of "Practical Life and Business Success," at the County Court House at 8 p. m. Ladies and gentlemen and the clergy are invited to attend.

Is John Taylor Dead.

President John Taylor the head of the polygamous church is dead. He has been a fugitive from justice some time and the location of the body is not known. Who knows that it is not a job to let him escape to Europe and end his days in peace.

Queer Accident.

Yesterday Eugene Rail bet that he could, with his bare hands, pull an ordinary liquor glass in two at his father's store. He succeeded, but the broken glass cut the ends of several of his fingers off. The wounds were painful but not dangerous.

Good Enough.

Andrew Loreni attempted to slide out of town yesterday with $40 he had borrowed of Ed. Reynolds. When arrested he had $600, and was obliged to pay $40 and the Court fees to keep out of jail.

TROUBLE AT THE LAKE.

The Landlords Have a General Row Among Themselves.

Visitors at the Lake report a queer state of affairs there in the shape of a triangular fight among the land-lords. The battle ground is around the Tallac property.

It appears that Baldwin owns the Tallac and Gilmore owns the head of Fallen Leaf Lake and Lilly Lake, as well as the famous mineral springs.

Baldwin arranged with Gilmore to give the latter the right to take the Tallac guests on excursions to the upper lakes and mountains. Gilmore purchased horses and carriages and improved the road and for a season made some money. Baldwin then decided that if there was money in it he might as well make it. Acting on this idea he withdrew his privilege and placed a line of carriages on the road himself.

This naturally riled Gilmore who had made the road, and expended considerable money on the proposition and he concluded to checkmate his wealthy rival. He did it very easily by simply fencing in his own property, which amounts to several hundred acres and commands the road around Fallen Leaf Lake.

Next morning Mrs. Baldwin in an elegant turn out reached the head of Fallen Leaf Lake but found the way barred by Gilmore and a six ply barbed wire fence. He informed Mrs. Baldwin that she had reached the boundaries of his private land and he proposed to keep it private for his own guests and not Baldwin's.

If she wanted to go up to the Gilmore Springs hotel and stop a few days, he would be happy to take her there free and treat her to the best in the country for $2 a day. She was at liberty to bring Mr. Baldwin up also, at the same rates. When Mrs. B. got back to Tallac, Baldwin declared war on the tribe of Gilmore and all its belongings. Gilmore, however, continues his exclusive policy, and allows none to enter his romantic domain unless they come up from Yank's which is about a mile below Tallac.

Yank, whom Baldwin is trying to freeze out, has allied himself with Gilmore, and works on Baldwin's right flank. Between the two and his Los Angeles breach of promise cases, Lucky B. has an interesting time of it. As visiting the upper lakes owned by Gilmore has long been one of the chief attractions to the guests at Tallac, the Yank-Gilmore combination is considered something of a copper for the hotel. How long the fight will be kept up no one knows, but all agree that it is injuring the business all over the Lake.

HE SAW THE ACE.

A Game of Rather High Carson Poker.

A few nights ago a Carson card sharp fell in with a Genoa expert and got into some rather high play. At last the Genoa man went $20 blind, and in the deal got three kings, his opponent getting two queens. Each man stood pat, and in the draw the Genoa man got his other king, and the Carson man got his other two queens. There were two other men fooling with the game a little, but had dropped out, not caring to stride the blind.

The betting now got high between the two, each raising the other in good shape. When on the last raise, of $100, the Genoa man began to weaken, suspecting from his opponent's stiff responses, that he had four aces. Just as he was wondering what he should do, he noticed one of the players who had dropped out, shuffling the cards, and for a second he saw an ace flash in the discarded pack, and then he knew he was safe. He met the other's raise with $100, more which the other responded to and called for a show of cards.

"Four Queens."
"Four Kings."
Genoa raked in $450 net, and the game dissolved.

The Veil of Futurity.

Mrs. Bowers, the Washoe Seeress, can be found the next few days at Room 38, Arlington House, where she can be consulted on the future.

THE BOTTLE MARKET.

Yesterday's Shorts Unable to Fill.

Yesterday there was quite a flurry in the bottle market. It appears that for some weeks prior to the circus the boys about town had been dealing in futures, in the bottle market and sold large quantities of bottles, July delivery, to merchants to raise money for the show.

These contracts matured yesterday and the boys in endeavoring to fill their shorts, were confronted with an unexpected scarcity of stock. Bottles quoted at 25 cents a dozen, rose to 35cts. on the morning board. Livingston & Co., John Sweeney and Cap. Avery were the principal holders of the July options and insisted on immediate delivery.

Several of the small boy firms called upon were unable to meet the demands and called for an extension of time. The firms held a meeting and in view of the extreme stringency and sensitiveness of the market, agreed to extend the time 15 days to tide the shaky firms over the crisis. This news caused a much easier feeling in financial circles.

Patsey Mulligan and Billy O'Hare who were reported badly cinched yesterday morning, made a delivery of ten dozen bottles in the afternoon at Livingston's clearing house and are now all right in change. Johnny Wright is reported to have advanced the necessary stock to save their credit at 8 per cent. a month. It is thought that matters will soon be restored to their normal condition. There are rumors of several light failures but nothing authentic.

THE NEVADA GEYSERS.

A Spouting Well of Hot Water at Steamboat.

Hugh Mohan, who has recently been to Steamboat Springs, thus describes the new find:

"Messrs. Farnum & Murphy blasted the old orifices with dynamite, when lo and behold! the old spring opened and the water issued forth from the earth in large volumes, rising to a height of from 65 to 75 feet. The steam was so intense, and the force of the water so great, that it shot out like the incessant water of Iceland's glaciers. Wherever it fell paint gave way, shingles turned up their edges and the earth in the vicinity was one mass of foam and cloud, while gravel was cast in every direction, the intense heat cracking the windows of the bath house, and otherwise astonishing the lucky beholders. As quick as opportunity would permit, the waters thus belching forth were under control, and today are held in reserve for the purpose of furnishing steam to the large and commodious building from under which it emanates. The water and steam is largely impregnated with a sulphurine aroma—not at all objectionable to the olfactories. The building is very capacious, having in it 15 well-furnished rooms, where customers can now be accommodated.

The Caledonian.

The proprietors of Bowers' Mansion announce that they have made ample preparations to serve at least one thousand picnickers with a chicken dinner at the Caledonia picnic, on the 6th of August. Do not carry a basket of lunch, as there will be a genuine homedinner for every one and his girl, and plenty of it. Mr. Read has sent two carpenters to the Mansion to make necessary repairs and put the dance hall in the best possible condition for the accommodation of all devotees of the terpsichorean art. Come and come a.

Bodie Indians Becoming Civilized.

As an evidence of what civilization is doing for the Indians we noticed yesterday, in one of our stores, the purchase of an immense wire bustle by a young and giddy Piute squaw. She was quite particular, and finally selected one of the wire arrangements with blue trimmings. From her build we think it was an unnecessary investment. — Bodie Miner.

—The decrease of water in the Carson has caused large drafts of men in the mines.
